

Abbas Barati

Advertising photographer

I am Abbas, also known by my nickname Roozbeh, a photographer and documentary filmmaker with over 15 years of experience in professional photography. Over the years, I have specialized in advertising, industrial, and product photography and have completed numerous courses in lighting and portrait photography.

My academic background is in Industrial Management, but my passion for art led me to photography and capturing special moments in life. In addition to photography, I am also engaged in creating creative videos for digital platforms. Currently, I focus on offering product and advertising photography services to international clients.

My goal is to create works that not only exhibit high technical quality but also tell a unique story about brands and products.
